Battle Ship Texas.

Work on the Vessel Still Going Ahead.

THE OPINION OF EXPERTS.

Changes in the Original Plan Necessary Before the Ship Will Be Useful in Warfare—Improvements to Be Made at the Washington Navy Yard—Other Washington News.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—From the fact that the navy department has issued proposals for steel plates for the battle ship Texas, now being built at Norfolk, it would seem that the department intends to proceed with the work, notwithstanding criticism and reports of a serious defect in the original design, and assertion that the hull of the vessel would have to be lengthened in order to give greater displacement, or else the ship would not float when launched.

Assistant Naval Constructor Bowles, who is in charge of the ship, submitted a long report to Secretary Whitney a few weeks before that official went out of office, claiming that with some slight modifications the ship would be all right. The ex-secretary evidently agreed with him, for an order was made that the work should go on. When Secretary Tracy came into office he wanted fuller information before allowing the work to proceed. Constructor Bowles came to Washington and had a long interview with the secretary and went back to Norfolk with the insurance. It is stated that the work would be resumed.

In the meantime the bureau of construction and repair had been carefully going over the original plans and those submitted by Constructor Bowles. It is understood that the report of Chief Naval Constructor Wilson, which is quite voluminous, goes into the details with exactness, and gives a true and correct criticism of the ship as originally planned, and of her ability to float if built upon those lines. Naval Constructor Wilson is a practiced ship builder, and his views undoubtedly will have great weight with Secretary Tracy.

The gossip in official circles is that Chief Constructor Wilson has handled the report of Mr. Bowles with great severity, and pointed out by facts and figures the utter impossibility of constructing the ship upon such plans. The proposals for the steel plates for the ship, however, would naturally suggest that the ship would be finished upon the original plans, but those in a position to know say that the few tons of plates advertised for would be but a drop in the bucket when compared to the changes that are soon to come.

Improvements in the White House.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—A bill to provide for the extension of the White House, with a view to giving the family of the president more room for domestic purposes, will probably be introduced by Senator Cameron this winter. At least he has signified his intention to do so unless somebody has a bill to propose that may be more desirable than his own idea on the subject. Senator Cameron's idea for an improvement is a general one. He has nothing to offer in the way of detail. His proposition is to extend the executive mansion by wings built to the east and west, much in the same manner that the capitol building was enlarged by the addition of the house and senate extensions.

The White House as it stands is clothed with too many circumstances of historical interest to permit of its demolition or any radical alterations that would destroy the original. It has been the home of every president except Washington, and the corner stone was laid by him.

Senator Cameron's idea is to leave it as it is, and increase the accommodations by the extensions stated. He wants the plan for the wing to be used by the family to be designed after ideas agreeable to Mrs. Harrison. As a woman with experience in housekeeping under difficulties, she will, he thinks, know what is needed better than a man.

Funeral of General West.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—The funeral of Gen. T. L. West, who died at Ashbury Park, last Wednesday, took place from the Langham house Sunday afternoon. Gens. Rosecrans and Mussey, Col. Hepburn and Capt. Wallace, both old army comrades of the deceased, acted as pallbearers. A large number of friends and acquaintances attended the funeral and the remains to their last resting place in Arlington National cemetery.

A Sentence Not Enforced.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—The sentence of Commander Harrington to two years suspension for running the Constellation ashore has not been acted upon by the navy department, despite all reports to the contrary. The delay of Secretary Tracy is looked upon favorably by the friends of Commander Harrington, some of whom assert that the sentence will be mitigated if not wiped out altogether.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—A young Hungarian woman with two children is being cared for by the Castle Garden authorities. She has learned that her husband, who sent her money to come to this country, was lost in the Johnstown calamity. Her grief on hearing of his death was terrible.

PASSENGER TRAIN DERAILED.

Eighteen Persons Injured, Though All May Recover.

LINCOLN, Neb., Aug. 19.—At half-past 7 o'clock Sunday morning an incoming passenger train on the Burlington and Missouri was derailed two miles from the city. A broken brake beam threw a switch open, and two cars were hurled down an embankment. Eighteen persons were injured, more or less seriously, but all may recover.

The injured are: William Babcock and son, of Miller, Neb.; Mrs. May McKesson, of Wymore; R. K. Clarke, of Des Moines; F. W. Wood, of Waverly, Neb., and O. A. Jones, of Lincoln. Also the following members of a Burlington and Missouri bridge gang: C. P. Olson, Andrew Sundeen, W. A. Brown, John Griffith, Lars Framstead, Robert Kelly, George Holland, W. J. Moncrief, C. Culley, William Reed, F. Gebhart, Frank Graham.

Freight Train Wrecked.

MONTGOMERY, Ind., Aug. 19.—J. C. Lyons was killed outright, C. W. Pauly fatally mangled, an engine and eight cars wrecked, and a large number of cattle killed in an accident yesterday at this place. While a freight train of the Ohio and Mississippi railway was running at high speed it struck a cow, and the engine and eight cars were thrown into a ditch and demolished. The engineer and fireman saved themselves by jumping. All passenger trains on the road were delayed throughout the day.

FIRE AT CHAUTAUQUA.

Curiosity Store, Book Store and Three Boarding Houses Burned.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., Aug. 19. — At about 11 o'clock Saturday night fire was discovered in the curiosity store of H. D. Hill, on the assembly grounds at Chautauqua. The fire spread to H. Hollis' book store, and from there to three cottages owned by the assembly, and conducted as boarding houses by Mrs. G. R. Wilson. The buildings were all old and burned like tinder. The firemen were obliged to devote their attention to adjoining dwellings, which they were enabled to do, there being no wind. The losses are: H. D. Hill, $800; Professor H. Samuels, optical goods, $500; H. Hollis, $4,000; S. Finkelstein, oriental goods, $200. Mrs. Wilson, $2,000.

The houses were full of boarders, most of whom saved their personal effects, but Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Johnson and Mr. Pentz each lost a gold watch, and Professor Samuels lost a gold watch and $150 in money which he had in his vest pocket. The loss to the assembly is about $4,000.

WITH CARBOLIC ACID.

The Means Taken By Mrs. Crist to End Her Earthly Career.

LIMA, O., Aug. 19.—Mrs. Brenton Crist suicided Saturday by taking a large dose of carbolic acid. The Crists live on a farm about seven miles east of this city, and are wealthy. Some time ago they adopted Ella Hardin, whom the neighbors claimed they treated cruelly, and Friday, John Leatherman succeeded in getting her away and secreting her, and when Crist went for her Leatherman opened fire on him with a shotgun and drove him away.

Crist went home, and securing his gun, laid in ambush for Leatherman, and during his absence Mrs. Crist swallowed the acid. She died after suffering terrible agony. There is great feeling in that vicinity over the affair, and Crist, who is a determined man, vows that he will kill Leatherman on sight. This community is about equally divided on the matter.

ODD FELLOWS' MEETING.

Extensive Preparations Being Made for the Sovereign Grand Lodge.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 19.—One of the grandest assemblages of Odd Fellows ever seen on this continent will be that which will be witnessed in this city during the week beginning Sept. 16. The Sovereign Grand lodge will then be in session, and the Patriarchs Militant, the uniformed portion of the order, will be here in numbers estimated at from 6,000 to 10,000. It is thought that the grand procession will contain 30,000 Odd Fellows in line.

The order of Rebekahs will also be in session and this meeting will attract many ladies. The drills of the uniformed divisions for which prizes aggregating $7,000 will be offered, will be an important feature of the meeting. It is expected that several cities will make an effort to have the Sovereign Grand lodge removed from Columbus.

A Subject of Charity.

The Prince of Wales in the Role of a Pauper.

ROYALTY WITHOUT MONEY.

One Person, With More Money Than Brains, Comes to His Rescue—The Alliance Between Germany and Austria Strengthened—Other Foreign Dispatches.

LONDON, Aug. 19.—If the queen and her royal offspring have been very much put out over the shameful way in which the Radicals opposed their modest request for more money, the Prince of Wales at least has something with which to soothe his lacerated feelings, as a direct outcome of the agitation instituted by the Radical members of parliament and their supporters.

The prince has received an anonymous letter in which the writer deplores the inconsiderate conduct of the disloyal Radicals, sympathizes with his royal highness in the unpleasant position in which their agitation placed him, and last, but by no means least, he gives a proof of his sincerity by enclosing ten crisp new Bank of England notes, each of the denomination of £1,000. No name is signed to the communication and the writer has been at such pains to avoid leaving any cue to his identity that no one is prepared even to guess who he can be. The prince himself has no suspicion of any one, but in any event it is not likely that the police will be asked to interfere to drag this modest specimen of British loyalty from his anonymous retreat.

Boulanger Defends Himself.

LONDON, Aug. 19.—Frenchmen residing in London, to the number of 500, called upon Gen. Boulanger at his residence yesterday, and presented him with an address of sympathy and confidence. In replying to their spokesman he entered into the matter of his trial and conviction by the French senate, and took occasion to deny the charges upon which he was tried. He said he had never, on any occasion, made use of funds belonging to the state, except while trying to compass the safety of France, when attacked by enemies. If they had been cited to appear before any regular court in France to make answer to these outrageous charges, he and his colleagues would have hastened to take the first steamer for France. But such a course would not suit the nefarious purposes of those who, for the moment, were usurping the power of the republic. They formed a tribunal composed of his personal and political enemies and the enemies of his colleagues, by which all were virtually condemned before it met. Of Frenchmen, he said, he only asked that he be treated with fairness, and the triumph of their present rulers, of which they boasted so loudly at present, would soon be a thing of the past.

Champion of Dr. Peters.

LONDON, Aug. 19. The Cologne Gazette has set itself up as the special champion of Dr. Peters, the African explorer, whose vessel was recently seized by the British Admiral Fremantle. In this position The Gazette stands almost alone, the German press quite generally taking grounds against the doctor and his scheme, the more especially since the emperor's visit to England has so much improved the relations between the two people.

The Gazette says very boldly that the chancellor's organ, The North German Gazette, is opposing Dr. Peters only because that gentleman's personal relations with Bismarck are not pleasant. It holds as ridiculous that paper's assertion that Emin's province is within the sphere of British rights in Africa, and insists that it belongs to Emin to do with and dispose of as he sees fit. The Gazette is very bitter at Dr. Peters' desertion by his countrymen at the behest of England.

Critical Stage of a Strike.

LONDON, Aug. 19.—The strike of the London dock laborers, which has been in progress for some time, has reached a critical stage, and one side or the other must yield within a few days. The men have so thoroughly perfected their organization that their employes find it impossible to fill their places, and on many of the London docks work has been entirely suspended. Especially is this the case at the West India docks where some vessels have been lying for a week unable to load or unload. The stevedores held a meeting Saturday night and unanimously passed a resolution declaring they would not yield.

Alliance Between Germany and Austria.

LONDON, Aug. 19. It is reported from Berlin that the conferences there, in which the two emperors and their ministers have taken part, have resulted in a very material modification of the alliance existing between Germany and Austria. Heretofore the treaty between the two powers provided for joint action only in case either was attacked. The alteration just effected in the treaty makes it obligatory upon either power to come to the assistance of the other, when its vital interests are menaced. This modification is a marked strengthening of the existing alliance.

Seizure of British Vessels Unjustifiable.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 19.—Mr. Bordell, minister of customs, yesterday received the expected official reports of the seizure of the British vessels in the north Pacific by United States cruisers and revenue cutters for alleged violations of United States laws in United States waters. These papers, it is understood, show that such seizures, as far as they relate to ships registered in Canadian ports, were effected outside of the marine jurisdiction of the United States, and are therefore unjustifiable and entitle the owners and crews to compensation for any loss that may have been suffered.

China and Japan.

Latest News Received By Ocean Steamer.

DETAILS OF THE EARTHQUAKE.

Instead of Three Thousand Lives Being Lost the Number Now is Placed at Only Thirty—Extent of the Floods in Japan—Rioters Routed By Soldiers.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—The steamer City of Sydney, from Hong Kong and Yokohoma, which arrived yesterday evening, was the first to bring details of the earthquake at Kumamato, the first news of which was cabled July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another states that almost the entire town of Kumamato with a population of 38,000 was destroyed. Full details had not been received when the City of Sydney left Yokohoma, but the newspapers of that city of Aug. 2 indicate no such loss as given by the cablegrams. Several late telegrams to Yokohoma gave the loss at twenty to thirty killed.

The Japanese newspaper Jiji Shimpo, however, says that by a great earthquake at Kumamato on July 28 many hills have been rent, houses demolished people killed and wounded in the city, independent of the surrounding villages. Another shock has been felt and the inhabitants are fearing further disaster. The people have been seized with superstition on account of the hills being broken open.

FOREST FIRES IN MONTANA.

Hundreds of Thousands of Dollars Worth of Property Destroyed.

HELENA, Mont., Aug. 19.—Forest fires, which have been raging all over Montana for three weeks, have destroyed hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of timber, and have reached most alarming proportions. A gentleman in from northern Montana reports that ranges in Chanteau county, which heretofore have escaped, and on which cattlemen were depending to keep this winter thousands of head of cattle, are on fire, and all the big companies have their men out trying to suppress the flames. In two days the fire traveled over a section of sixty miles wide and one hundred miles in length.

Deer Lodge county, the town of Georgetown is surrounded by fire and a strong wind brought the flames within five miles of Phillipsburg. The mill of the Bimetallic Mining company near that town is in great danger and the fire is traveling toward it with great rapidity. Couriers who arrived at Phillipsburg from Georgetown at midnight, reported that the utmost consternation prevailed in the town, and a large force was organized to go to the rescue.

In the Yellowstone country the pineries fire covers an area of eight miles, and is spreading rapidly. Ranges in that section have also been almost entirely destroyed, the fire extending nearly from Miles City to Glendive.

A letter just received from Forsythe says that Henry Casey, J. P. Harrison and two cowboys, recently from Texas, who were out fighting the fire in that vicinity, are missing, and it is feared they have perished.

Chief Justice Fuller Expresses His Opinion of the Affair.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Aug. 19.—Chief Justice Fuller passed through Pittsburg on the "limited" last night from Cresson Springs, Pa., where he left his two daughters, on his way to Chicago. When asked about the killing of ex-Judge Terry, he said: "I had heard that Terry had uttered threats against Justice Field, but I did not know of them personally. I was surprised when I heard that Justice Field had been arrested. I cannot see what he had to do with the murder any more than any other spectator. Judge Sawyer has issued a habeas corpus and Justice Field will no doubt be released."

He said Justice Field was a man not to be deterred by threats, but would do his duty under all circumstances.

PROTECTING THEIR HOMES.

A Would-Be Ravisher Hung by a Mob at Pooler, Georgia.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 19.—Walter Asburg, colored, alias Berriam, was lynched at Pooler, ten miles west of here early Sunday morning, for an assault upon Lulu Kissman, a 17-year-old German girl, Saturday afternoon. The assault was made upon the girl at her home in the center of the town while the family was away. She was terribly beaten in a struggle with her assailant, but she successfully resisted him. Her clothing was torn from her body, her face terribly beaten and gashed and one eye was closed. The finger prints of the negro were left on her neck, and her cheeks were torn and bleeding. Her neck was so wrenched that she was unable to turn her head. The struggle must have lasted several minutes. The floor and furniture were covered with blood, and the girl's hands were bloody from the struggle. Her cries attracted a colored man who was near by and who rescued her from her assailant's clutches.

Asburg sprang through a door and escaped, but in the next house he knocked a woman down, seized a double-barrel shot gun and fled to the woods. In an hour the whole town was in arms, and a mounted posse started in pursuit. About midnight the negro was found at a low dance, about a mile from the scene of the assault. He was taken back to the girl's house and she identified him as her assailant. His clothes were covered with blood from the encounter with the girl. He confessed the crime and begged for mercy. Three hundred masked men hurried him to an open field, where he was strung up to a tree and his body riddled with bullets. Across his body was pinned a paper with the inscription: "This is the way we protect our homes." The body was left hanging and was cut down by the coroner. The lynching party was so strong that the authorities were unable to take Asburg from them.

THE GAS WAS TURNED ON.

An Actress' Narrow Escape from Death in a Chicago Hotel.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—Miss Mattie Hornby, one of the members of the "Bluebeard, Jr." company, who rooms alone at the Commercial hotel, was found lying unconscious on the floor of her room yesterday afternoon with a full flow of gas escaping from the burner and the room full of the deadly vapor. Miss Hornby was with great difficulty revived, and cared for by the other members of the company.

She said that she had eaten a late supper after the theater, and on retiring supposed she had turned out the gas as usual, though she now thinks that instead of that she opened one burner in endeavoring to close another. Finally, after sleeping a while the fumes awakened her and she attempted to reach the door, but fell on the floor and was unable to rise. She had no idea how long she lay on the floor, but it was 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon when the chambermaid, unable to effect an entrance to the room, called the housekeeper, who, opening the door with a pass key, found Miss Hornby lying unconscious.

He got up and took breakfast with his family for the first time since last Wednesday. He was not permitted to remain down stairs all day, however, and shortly after noon he went to bed again.

When asked about Mr. Randall's condition, Dr. Martin said: "He is much stronger, and will soon be moving around again. This attack of rheumatism was rather severe, but I think he has passed the crisis, and that he will soon be free from pain. He will be on his feet again in a few days.

ATTEMPTED TRAIN WRECKING.

A Hand-Car Prevents the Disaster, Although Three Men Are Injured.

ELNORA, Ind., Aug. 19.—A most atrocious attempt at train wrecking was attempted Saturday on the New Evansville and Richmond railway, between here and Odon. Obstructions in the shape of heavy railroad iron were piled upon the track. The wreckers would have accomplished their purpose but for the fact that just before train time a hand-car laden with three men passed along and struck the obstruction.

As a result the hand car was thrown from the track and wrecked. William Odell, one of the men on the hand car, had a leg broken, and was otherwise seriously injured. Evans Dunlap was fearfully cut and bruised, and Fred. Tolle was badly cut about the head and bruised on the body. There is no clue to the miscreants.

THE elixir that has been so great a wonder and the theme of so many articles and conversations is likely to have to give itself an application to keep alive. It is already dying, to all appearances.

ONE great question is decided in North Dakota—the location of the capital. Bismarck has secured the prize, and there is great jubilation in that thriving city over the prospect of future greatness.

THERE is reported to be some talk among the better class of Irishmen in Chicago about disbanding the Clan-na-Gael. The sooner that hateful and thoroughly un-American organization comes to an end the better.

THE street and alley committee should inspect north East street and hurry some needed repairs before Fair time. East street is extensively traveled at that time and the condition of the sidewalks, if not changed, will be a "give-away" to Marion.

WE doubt if Sullivan ever serves his sentence in a Mississippi penitentiary, and he ought not. We have no sympathy for Sully—was sorry that Kilrain didn't wipe up the ring with him—but the idea of the law being so fearfully offended by a harmless prize fight when duelists and mobs go free is not consistent.

THE all-important circumstance of the Terry tragedy is the fact that when Deputy Marshal Nagle fired after warning Terry to desist from his assault, the assailant was in the act of striking a second and more severe blow. The fact seems to be established beyond dispute by the statement of disinterested witnesses.

IT is a curious fact, and one well worthy of comment, that President Harrison's alleged refusal or neglect to kiss a certain baby up in Maine that was offered for his inspection should have drawn forth an almost universal chorus of approbation from newspapers of all shades of political feeling. One might suppose, at first blush, that all the editors must be crusty old bachelors, so emphatically do they enunciate the principle that no public man should be expected or compelled to kiss babies, or the babies be compelled to be kissed.

Free Advertising.

[Mansfield News.]

On this subject of free advertising much has been said and will be said until the last newspaper publisher is summoned on high to receive the reward he never got on earth. Why is it that anybody should expect a newspaper to publish gratuitously long "resolutions of respect," cards of thanks, lists of wedding presents, announcements of entertainments from which it is expected that money will be realized and a thousand and one other matters of no general interest, free of charge? Such things do not constitute news, nobody cares anything about them, except possibly the one reader out of a hundred who is directly concerned, and still day after day, week after week, and year after year, newspaper publishers have such things thrust upon them by people who feel offended if they are reminded that the publication of the same should be paid for, just as so much advertising.

Marshal and Ex-Marshal.

[Prospect Monitor.]

Marshal Mohr filed a complaint in the Mayor's court Friday morning against Jno R. Kline for resisting an officer in his official duty. When the marshal went to serve the warrant Mr. Kline refused to be arrested and drove him from the premises at the point of a revolver. He then went to the mayor's office of his own accord, waived examination and was bound over to court in the sum of $50, P. R. Sells going on the bond. There is hot blood between both of the gentlemen, and we fear before the matter is ended it may end in something serious.

Pimples on the Face

There is nothing that will so thoroughly build up the constitution, purify and strengthen the whole system. Sold and guaranteed by H. C. Hoberman & Co.

—The C. C. C. and I. and St. L., will sell round trip tickets to Chicago and return at $6 for the round trip on August 20th to 25th, tickets good returning ten days from date of sale.

ANOTHER MAMMOTH CAVE.

An Ohio Cavern That Rivals That of Kentucky in Wonderful Features.

A rival to the great Mammoth cave has at last been discovered. Henry Griendle, living on Limestone Ridge, over the line in Wyandot county, was plowing, when one of his horses broke through the earth into a deep hole. It was rescued from its position with great difficulty. Upon examing the spot Griendle found a large hole leading perpendicularly down into the earth. He dropped in a stone, and heard it rumble and rattle in its downward course till the sound died away in the distance.

Sensational reports of this discovery reached this city, and an exploring party was made up and drove over to the ridge to ascertain what was at the bottom of the story and the hole. The party consisted of half a dozen well known gentlemen, who were provided with ropes, lights, fireworks, etc., to make a thorough exploration. Having fixed everything in readiness for the descent, the question arose as to who should first go down. The men looked into the dark mysterious hole, mentally made a calculation as to the probability of finding a nest of rattlesnakes at the bottom, and each one was perfectly satisfied to let several of the others go first.

Finally one of the party summoned up sufficient courage and volunteered to make the descent alone. As he was lowered down, down, down, the light of his lantern could be seen growing fainter and smaller until a tiny speck was visible. After letting out the rope about 100 feet a faint, muffled whisper announced that he had found solid bottom. The reporter went down next, and finally the whole party found itself at the bottom of the shaft.

The hole descends through limestone rock all the way down and varies in diameter from three to thirty feet. The bottom is dry rock, and the place proved to be a capacious cavern. The place where the landing was made was estimated to be sixty feet in width, and while the ceiling at that point was low it gradually rose like a dome to the height of fully fifty feet. The floor was very uneven. The party had not gone a quarter of a mile when they were suddenly confronted by a yawning chasm, ten feet in width and of an unknown depth. Beyond this impassable cleft they could see the roof glittering in the light of their lanterns.

Several Roman candles were fired into the space, but the side walls could not be seen, so that there is no telling how far the cave extends in that direction. The fireworks revealed numerous stalactites and stalagmites of beautiful formation, whose marble like whiteness glistened and shone resplendent in the various colored lights. The roof sparkled with a frost like incrustation, which reflected the light from a myriad of shining points as though the whole dome were set in diamonds.

Retracing the iresteps for some distance, the party found to the right a small opening at the top of the steep ascent, and, entering it, were obliged to crawl on hands and knees for a distance of perhaps ten yards. Then the cavern suddenly opened into another mammoth chamber, apparently much larger than the first one, and possessing more stalactite formations. At a great distance from the entrance they came upon a lake of pure, cold water, as clear as crystal and of unfathomable depth. Holding the light to the water, a shining penny was dropped in and its gradual descent watched until it had fallen apparently fifty feet, when all trace of it was lost.

The water of the lake was perfectly still and dead, there being no current, and no signs of fish or animal life were visible. A few shells were picked up on the shores of the Lake, and, being again shut off from further advance, the party retraced their steps. Openings were seen in other directions, as though the cavern extended its wings still further, but the fear of losing their way and of the oil in the lanterns giving out prevented further explorations at present. It is proposed at some time in the near future to make further examination, going provided with boats, ladders, planks, etc., that the lakes and chasms may not stop the way.—Findlay (O.) Cor. Her Fortune Willed to Two Dogs

The most extraordinary will ever made was probated here yesterday. Mrs. Mary Ann Schaub, an aged German lady who has lived in Nashville for the past sixty years, died at her home in the northern suburbs of the city, where she has lived for nearly half a century. She had no kin in the world of whom any one knows, and had surrounded herself by a number of dogs and cats. She had accumulated a handsome property, valued at about $6,000, and this she leaves in trust for two of her favorite dogs. The animals are of the commonest breed.

She provides that a sufficient sum shall be reserved from her personalty to maintain these dogs in comfort as long as they live, and especially orders one bed and clothing for their occupancy. A young lady whom she adopted is made secondary beneficiary, upon the condition that she will live in the house and care for the dogs for a period of eight years. If at the end of this time her task has been dutifully performed she shall come into possession of the entire property.—Nashville (Tenn.) Cor. Denver Republican.

A Wonderful Power.

Grand Reporter J. W. Jacobs, of the Knights of Honor of Indiana, is the possessor of singular power. By some occult process he can stop the bleeding of even dangerous wounds, and he has frequently been called upon in cases where physicians seemed powerless. All that he requires is to know the exact location of the patient, and, though he be several miles distant, the bleeding will cease. He never accepts any pay, nor does he want notoriety. Mr. Jacobs says it is not necessary that the patient believe in the healing power. He learned it when a boy from his sister-in-law, but has never taught it to any one else.—Indianapolis News

An Aeronaut's Terrible Death.

Last night Professor Higgins and Miss De Voy were announced to make a balloon ascent from the Manchester race course and to descend by means of parachutes. Miss De Voy did not make the ascent, but the professor went up, and his assistant, a man named Lennox, also ascended, but in the car attached to the balloon. Professor Higgins descended from a great height in Alexandra park, falling into the ornamental pond there, but was unhurt. The balloon then went over towards Burnage, and, suddenly collapsing, fell, Lennox being killed. The balloon is said to have burst when approaching or passing over Fallowfield. The pace at which the balloon was descending was so terrific that the sand, instead of falling earthwards, actually streamed up into the air as the balloon shot through it, and as it was flying upward it had the appearance of smoke issuing from the balloon.

A Mr. Linton, who saw the balloon pass over Fallowfield, states that at that time he saw the man Lennox out on the netting which inclosed the silk portion of the balloon, climbing up to the top of the balloon. Evidently he had then discovered that the gas was fast leaving the balloon at the top, and was making a desperate effort to remedy the injury. When the balloon had descended to a distance of some four or five hundred yards from the ground the silk portion collapsed entirely, and the balloon then presented the appearance of an elongated cigar. A few seconds later the balloon fell with a terrific thud in a field. Two or three men at once rushed to the spot and tried to get the man from beneath the car. Apparently the car had fallen straight on the ground, and the whole of the upper part of the balloon had fallen on Lennox, completely covering him. It did not take the willing helpers long to remove the silk envelope, netting, etc., from above Lennox, but when they reached his body he gave not the slightest sign of life. One of his legs was twisted and broken, and he was badly cut about the face and head. He had apparently been instantaneously killed. —Pall Mall Gazette.

Rescued Him from a Bear.

Willie Hammer, an 11-year-old son of Benjamin Hammer, had an adventure last week, while herding his father's sheep over in the White river country, that came near proving fatal. The boy had been looking for grouse with a 32-caliber gun, and had just lain down on the ground to rest, when the sheep became frightened, and on looking to see the cause of the commotion a huge cinnamon bear was a few paces away facing him. Willie fired the gun at the breast of the bear, which caused him to come for him. He turned to run, but had gone only a few steps when he stepped into a hole and fell, and on rising and looking around the bear was close to him, and, rising up on his hind legs, he seized him and commenced to squeeze him, stopping for breath, the boy all the while trying to use a knife which he pulled from his pocket, but with no success, as his arms were held tightly above the elbow.

At this critical time the dog came up and bit the bear, causing him to drop the boy, which he did with a blow on the back of the head with his huge paw, knocking him senseless. This was about 2 o'clock, and when he came to his senses it was about 5 o'clock. He then gathered up the sheep, which had become badly scattered, and went to camp, his clothes nearly torn off and covered with blood, which, by the way, came from the bear, for the boy, though very sore and with head badly swollen, did not have a scratch on him.—Castle Rock Journal.

The National Flower.

According to Dr. Charles Pickering ("Chronological History of Plants," p. 908), the first reference to Magnolia glauca was made in a report of some navigators in 1584, who, proceeding to Roanoke island (North Carolina), found "the trees that beareth rind of the black cynamon, of which like Capt. Winter brought from the Streights of Magellann." It is found from New York and New Jersey through the Atlantic states, generally near the coast, to Florida, and through the gulf states into Texas. In the southern states it sometimes becomes a large tree, sixty or seventy feet high, with a trunk three or four feet in diameter, and is an evergreen. It has been suggested by some enthusiasts that this should be chosen as the "national flower," if we must have one. But, although the exquisite beauty and fragrance of the flower make it popular and desirable wherever known, it is recognized and prized by a comparatively small number of the people.—Garden and Forest.

A Huge Contract.

The Peruvian congress is progressing speedily in the discussion of the Donoughmore contract. Five articles are already approved—the first, by which the bondholders declare the foreign debt of Peru as finally canceled; the second giving them the railways of the state for sixty-six years (the perpetual possession did not meet with approbation); the third giving them 2,000,000 tons of guano, although the entire amount now exported does not reach over 600,000 tons; the use of the road and appurtenances thereof on the Arequipa railway, and the navigation of Lake Titicaca under the national flag and in national vessels, with the Peruvian officers in uniforms. All these have been passed.—Once a Week.

Georgia's Polyglot Nonagenarian.

Col. James Edward Calhoun, one of the richest men in this section of the country, and who is said to own 99,000 acres of land, is one of the finest educated men in the south. He was once a naval officer, and acquired such a knowledge of fifteen different languages that he could speak and write them fluently. He imperfectly knew ten other languages. He has not an English book in his house, but spends all his time reading works in some foreign language. He is now 92 years old, and is in remarkably good health for his age.—Elberton (Ga.) Star.

SHE LIKES ORIGINAL PRAYERS.

Child Actress Marguerite Fields Objected to "Now I Lay Me Down to Sleep."

Marguerite Fields is, without doubt, the most remarkable child actress in the country. She is scarcely 6 years old and has played with Mr. Oliver Byron in "The Upper Hand," "The Inside Track" and "Across the Continent," and everywhere she is the leading attraction and gets more recalls than any one else on the bill.

The little one is full of originality and is always doing things which are not on the programme. Mr. Byron says he never knows when she is going to appear or what she is going to do.

Once in the farce called "Reuben Glue" she was standing on a chair holding up a loaf of bread at which she gazed, exclaiming: "The world is mine!"

Clara Morris' agent was in one of the boxes, and Mr. Byron, seeing him, said to the little girl: "You may get down now, Clara Morris."

Instantly the little one replied: "I'm not Clara Morris."

"Who are you then?"

"I'm Rueben Glue," she said, and then she sang, "When the Reubins Nest Again." It is needless to say that the house came down.

Marguerite has a little dog of which she is very fond. She carries it to the theatre with her, and once she interrupted a very tender breakfast table scene between two lovers by marching on the stage and setting the dog down among the dishes.

The little one is quick at repartee and says some very funny things, though in her innocence she is sometimes rather irreverent. Once while traveling on a sleeping car she begged to sleep with Mr. Byron. It was late at night, after a long performance, but the little girl was, to quote Mr. Byron's words, "as fresh as a daisy."

"Have you said your prayers, baby?" asked Mr. Byron.

"No, but I'll say 'em now," she replied, and turning over on her face she made a long petition, then putting her arms round Mr. Byron's neck, she said: "Now you say your prayers."

"I have said them."

"But I didn't hear you."

"Well, I certainly said them."

"Say them over again, then."

"Oh, no," said Mr. Byron. "That wouldn't do. God hasn't time to hear people say their prayers price."

"Well, say a little one just for me. God won't mind that."

In order to satisfy her Mr. Byron began to repeat: "Now I lay me down to sleep," when to his surprise Marguerite dropped her devout mood and exclaimed:

"Oh, that's a chestnut! Say me a prayer out of your head."

With all her brightness and despite the fact that she is made so much of, the little girl is as natural as a child should be. She seems to be all unconscious that she excites applause.

On one occasion she said: "I wish the people would stop clapping their hands. I wouldn't have to sing so loud then to make them hear."—New York Journal.

The Flood Cure for Baldness.

In a letter received yesterday by Dr. M. Marbury, residing at the corner of Independence avenue and Locust street, this city, is related an incident which is indeed marvelous, and, coming directly as it does, is beyond all doubt true. The letter is from Mr Frank Marbury, a cousin of Dr. Marbury, who is just recovering from a frightful experience in the Johnstown flood. For seven long hours he battled with the waters for his life. Every hour seemed a day, but at last he was rescued several miles from the place where the hotel had stood.

The strange part of the story is yet to come. Mr. Marbury is 38 years of age, and for twelve years he has been entirely bald, and the top of his head had become quite popular with the flies as a summer resort. He had used the wonderful hair restoratives people read about in the hopes of starting the hair, but all to no purpose; it refused to grow. Two days after the flood he noticed a downy substance all over the hitherto bald head. As time passed the down became hair, which grew remarkably fast, and now has reached the length of one inch all over his head.—Kansas City Times

Vacations Misused.

The Lancet declares that many sudden deaths are caused each year by misuse of the vacation season, and also affirms that the experience of most city physicians shows that overstrain is often followed by prolonged illness. We know a wise lawyer who never did anything the first day of his vacation, as little as possible the second; took a short walk the third, two short walks the fourth, and not until the eighth day was ready to climb a mountain. By this cautious course he grew stronger to the end, and returned home with vitality enough to work till the next outing came around. One can make a great change in his habits without detriment if he takes a long time to do it, but only young persons can risk sudden changes, and they sometimes fall victims to the strain.

New Way of Propelling a Boat.

Samuel L. Farmer, of Henderson, Jefferson county, N. Y., has invented a boat which, he claims, can be rowed faster than any now in use. Only one oar is used, which is thrust through the middle of the boat, somewhat after the fashion of a centerboard. The boat is propelled by working the oar backward and forward. The leverage obtained is enormous, and the inventor says that a small boy in his boat can beat a professional oarsman in a shell.—Exchange

A LOGMAN'S ROMANCE.

Saved from the Pennsylvania Floods by a Girl Whom He Married.

John Prowley, a young fisherman, whose good natured habits have made him popular for many miles along the Susquehanna river, walked into the Perry county court house the other day and asked for a marriage license. His face was not so brown that it did not betray his blushes when he announced the name of his prospective bride, but it was not because she had ever been guilty of a wrongdoing that he flushed. The girl was Mary Yerger, and he was very proud of her. They had lived within ten miles of each other for years, but it was not until the recent great flood in Pennsylvania that they were brought to an acquaintance.

John is a carpenter's son, and he industriously aided his father to provide for a large family by fishing and piloting fishing parties from the big towns around the river. Most of his time was spent along the Susquehanna, near which his parents lived. When the June flood came people from all parts of the country hurried to the river to see its sights. Mary Yerger and a boy, son of the farmer with whom she lived, loitered on the water's edge until dusk of the day when the water had reached its highest mark. Few persons had tarried so long, but she and the boy forgot the time while looking out on the swift waters at a boom log catcher. He was standing in a frail skiff, hooking the big booms with a long pole and towing them to land on the opposite side of the river. Boom after boom was thus secured, and he operated with such vigorous regularity that it seemed his strength would soon be exhausted. He had just landed one of unusual size which took all his strength, and Mary thought he would rest a while before going out into the troublesome waters again. But he didn't, and wiping the perspiration from his brow with a part of his torn shirt sleeve, he quickly rowed out and was headed toward a large walnut log. Before he reached the coveted prize his boat had been caught between a mass of the booms, which ground it to pieces like a thing of glass. He escaped most miraculously from instant death by climbing over the logs and reaching the water. He tried to swim for the shore, but it was plainly seen that he was too much overcome to get even half the distance. The current was swift, and he was beginning to go down with it.

Mary Yerger knew that he would drown unless she saved him, for nobody else was in sight. It was a perilous attempt, but she did not hesitate. She was not the kind of a woman to see a human life thus sacrificed without at least an effort to rescue, and with almost superhuman strength she dragged into the water a rowboat that had been pulled up on elevated ground, safe from the rising water. When she reached the man he was so nearly exhausted that he could not climb into the boat without her assistance. That night from the same table at which John Prowley ate his supper, Mary Yerger's meal was also taken. It was at John's home, and the two sat around the table a long time, telling their experience of the early evening to John's parents and their other children. Mary was always thereafter a welcome guest at the Prowley home, and John spent much of his time in her company.

It was with a proud satisfaction that John related this circumstance while the clerk was filling out his marriage license. John and Mary are married now, and they expect to get a pretty good start toward housekeeping when the Lumbermen's Exchange of Williamsport pays for the logs which John caught.—Harrisburg Cor. New York Sun.

Twenty Years on Trial.

We sincerely hope that Dr. Brown-Sequard, of London, and Dr. Hammond, of Washington, are not playing upon us elderly gentlemen a practical joke, by pretending that they can inject into our shrunken veins the juices of rabbits and guinea pigs, and thus give to our advancing years the strength and vigor of a renewed and buoyant youth. Even the amount of twenty years taken from the threescore now attained would be a most grateful fact, and, as we now view the project, we think we would willingly submit to the injected matter unless we felt it would seriously impair our usefulness hereafter by imparting to us the nature of the pig and the courage of the rabbit. Nor yet do we see why this new being might not be attended with great success, for, indeed, we know many men with all the instincts of the hog, all the moral and mental deficiencies of the "bunnie," who have admirable success in life. At all events, we will try one term of twenty years.—San Francisco Argonaut.

Girls Saved by a Dog.

Last Sunday Miss Susie Feney, of Strawberry valley, and Miss Jessie Martin, of Oroville, who was visiting her, accompanied by an English mastiff, went into an adjacent wood in search of ferns. While seated on a log in an isolated part of the forest, quite a distance from their home, they were approached by a cinnamon bear. At sight of their visitor the young ladies started to run toward home, screaming at the top of their voices and followed by the bear. The mastiff was not afraid, and caught hold of the bear by the neck. A desperate struggle took place until two of Miss Feney's brothers arrived and shot the bear. The dog was so badly mangled that he will probably die.—Marysville Cor. San Francisco Chronicle.

The Largest Diamond.

The largest diamond in the world is now at the Paris exposition. The Prince of Wales recently christened it the Imperial. It was found in South Africa in 1885 and was taken at once to Amsterdam, where it was being cut and polished for a year and a half. The Regent, formerly the largest known diamond, weighs 136 carats and is valued at 12,000,000 francs. The Imperial weighs 190 carats and is valued at from 15,000,000 to 17,000,000 francs.—Paris Letter.

MAIL AND EXPRESS

The Advocate of the Best Interests of the Home—The Enemy of the Saloon. The Friend of American Labor. The Favorite Newspaper of People of Refined Tastes Everywhere.

The New York MAIL AND EXPRESS, the favorite American newspaper of many people of intelligent and cultivated tastes, has recently made some noteworthy improvements, materially increasing its general excellence. It is in the broadest sense most carefully edited, and adapted to the wants and tastes of intelligent readers throughout the entire country—North, South, East and West. It is a thoroughly clean paper, free from the corrupting, sensational and demoralizing trash, miscalled news, which defiles the pages of too many city papers.

OUR POLITICS.

We believe the Republican party to be the true instrument of the POLITICAL PROGRESS of the American people; and holding that the honest enforcement of its principles is the best guarantee of the national welfare, we shall support them with all our might; but we shall always treat opposing parties with consideration and fair play.

AGAINST THE SALOON.

The MAIL AND EXPRESS is the recognized National organ of the great Anti-Saloon Republican movement. It believes that the liquor traffic as it exists to-day in the United States is the enemy of society, a fruitful source of corruption in politics, the ally of anarchy, a school of crime, and, with its avowed purpose of seeking to corruptly control elections and legislation, is a menace to the public welfare and deserves the condemnation of all good men.

A FREAK'S MARRIAGE.

A very unique marriage was celebrated in Squire Hauser's office yesterday afternoon, the squire officiating. The bride was Miss Jessie Troeger, who lives at the corner of Main street and McMicken avenue. She obtained some celebrity two years ago by leading a strike of the waitresses in Rockwell's restaurant. She is 20 years old. The groom is Charles K. Adams, better known in the dime museum world as the Armless Wonder. He was born without those useful members of the body, and in lieu of a better and more profitable means of livelihood, hired himself out to dime museums. Adams is now about 30 years of age, and barring the lack of arms is a fine specimen of physical beauty.

The absence of arms is little felt by the Wonder, however, for he has become very expert with his toes and mouth. He can thread a needle or write a neat letter with the former, while with the latter he paints dainty little pictures, decorates chinaware, etc., holding the brush between his teeth.

When the couple entered the squire's office the other day and said they wanted to be united in wedlock, that official was perplexed for awhile.

"Oh, that is easy enough," said the pretty bride, who stood fully three heads shorter than the groom, and she reached up and grasped the stump of his undeveloped left arm with her right hand.

"See," she said, as she stood smilingly on her tiptoes.

"But the ring. How can he put the marriage ring on your finger?"

"In this way," said Adams, and the astonished officials in the squire's court were thunderstruck to see the circlet of gold between the armless man's teeth. Bending his head he deftly slipped it over the girl's finger.

Satisfied that the couple understood their business, the squire went ahead and performed the ceremony.

After being made man and wife Adams sat down, and slipping the shoe off his right foot, disclosing a stocking with the front of the foot cut off, he reached into his vest pocket with his toes and brought out a roll of bills. Selecting a fivedollar note he tendered it as a fee, and, putting on his shoe, went away, his little wife sticking close to him.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A Touching Scene.

Annie Payne contributes the following lines to the "Minor Key" column: Clear and strong did the sweet old words, "Hide me, O, my Saviour, hide," come to us, sitting forlorn and disconsolate, in a wrecked train, on the outskirts of a little village way up in Maine, waiting for the promised train to arrive that was to take us onward. Turning to discover whence the sweet sound came, we found a tiny chapel just beyond, crowning a noble hill surrounded by a beautiful grove, which seemed to shelter it and its quiet guardians, who so peacefully rested in their narrow homes, from the inquisitive eye of the passing stranger. We soon found our way up the wandering path, and in a short time had quietly slipped into the old fashioned, high backed pews, and were listening with bowed heads to the prayer offered up by the white haired pastor, who in his snowy robes looked a very patriarch.

There was indeed only "two or three gathered together," but none the less earnest were the words of their aged pastor, as he exhorted them in trembling tones to seek that "home not made with hands," to which he seemed so near—so near that he was only awaiting his Master's call. It was only evening prayer, but which of us who was so unexpectedly called to God's house by those simple words, brought to us by the gentle breeze, shall soon forget those few moments of quiet communion with our Heavenly Father? And as we bent our footsteps towards the scene of wreck and destruction, from which we had been so mercifully preserved, it was with a feeling of tender reverence that we turned to have a last look at the little village church, athwart which the sunbeams seemed to linger with a loving touch as it shed its last golden rays amongst us. —New Orleans Picayune.

Origin of Black Maria.

Way back in the morning twilight of the settlement of Boston, Maria Lee, a colored woman of gigantic stature, possessing the courage of a lion, kept a sailors' boarding house down at the old North End. One night a party of drunken tars got into a row and began throwing the chattels out of her house. The "watch" was called in, but was soon overpowered and dismay spread abroad through the street. Then Maria stalked out of her habitation and stopped further outrage by collaring two of the leading offenders and carrying them bodily up the old "watch house," then standing near where Union street now crosses Hanover street. "Black Maria" was known throughout the city for her prodigious strength, and for years she aided the police in quelling rows and had been known to take three strong men to the "watch house" at once, or at one time. So, years afterward, when the first police "cart" was made it was called the "Black Maria"—hence the name.—Boston Globe.

A Handy Test for Sewer Gas.

It is not generally known that silverware furnishes one of the most reliable means of detecting defective drainage. If it is covered with a black coating, or tarnished, soon after being cleaned, and after a second or third cleaning again becomes darkened, one may be certain that there is some trouble with the drainage system of the house. The agent which furnishes the tarnishing is not sewer gas itself, as it is commonly supposed, but a gas which always accompanies it, called sulphureted hydrogen. It is the same gas which is generated in decaying eggs and other putrefying animal and vegetable matters.—Herald of Health.

MAKING MY LADY'S MUFF.

THE BUSY FURRIERS IN AN OLD QUARTER OF NEW YORK CITY.

Cutter, Sewer, Blocker and Finisher Turn Out Three Dozen Muffs in a Day—Curious Details of the Business—The Native Hare and the Foreign Ermine.

Furs in summer? Yes, they're not so uncommon as to attract undue attention, but these are not worn over fair shoulders clad in lawn. They are heaped in various shapes of manufacture in the shop of a furrier down in the French quarter. At least one thousand men and women in New York are busied in making fur garments. There are factories employing many scores of workmen, and there are dingy little shops where a few journeymen work together, with small capital, low rent and moderate profits. In this particular shop there are only four men at work—just the number required to complete a garment under the division of labor usual in the fur business.

One man stands at a counter with a pile of muskrat skins at his left hand, and in his right a keen little knife, shaped almost exactly like the outstretched wing of a bird. The skin of the furs has been dampened so that it is pliant. The cutter, as he is called, seizes a skin, turns the fur down and rapidly cuts out defects with his bird's wing knife.

SCARCITY OF PERFECT SKINS.

Scarcely one skin in a hundred is perfect. There are shot holes, scars from bites and scratches, tears and other damage, the result of careless curing. By the time all defects have been cut out it may have been necessary to divide the skin into twenty strips and squares. About 20 per cent. of the fur is lost by the process of cutting; though the smallest pieces, even those not more than an inch square, are carefully saved, so long as they are well covered with hair.

As the knife slips through the leather you notice that the under side of the fur is a rich, golden brown, while the outer surface is black. The fur has been dyed, but the dye has not penetrated to the skin. The dyeing and curing are done elsewhere at factories which receive the raw skins by the thousand from the west and south. They come turned wrong side out and looking like great Japanese slippers from having been stretched and dried by the trapper on pointed shingles.

From the cutter's table the skins go to the sewer. He sits in a corner and works a strong sewing machine, whose needle is easily driven through the skin. Ordinary, stout thread is used, and the sewer manages to piece together the various scraps in such a way that no seam shows on the hairy side. The seams on the under side appear like straight ridges or cords. The skin comes from the sewer a patchwork of leather almost as strongly held together as an uncut pelt.

From the sewer the material goes to the blocker. In this instance it is a muff that they are making. The "block" is in seven pieces that fit together and form an implement that looks almost exactly like a big wheel hub. The skin, which has been sewn end to end so as to form a hollow cylinder, is placed on the block form. It extends a little beyond the block, and a little wooden disk is placed in each end of the latter. To these disks the ends of the skin are nailed, and the whole thing is then placed in the window to dry.

When the skin is partly dried it is removed from the block and turned over to the finisher. He puts in wadding and lining and sews on the cord and tassels, if the muff is to be thus ornamented. Finally the fur is carefully brushed until it is smooth and glossy. Then it is put into a round pasteboard box, ready to be shipped to the merchant, through whom it is distributed to the retail dealers here and elsewhere.

WAGES OF THE WORKERS.

Four men working together thus ten hours a day can make three dozen muffs. Cutters earn from $15 to $18 a week and blockers and finishers from $10 to $12 a week. Women are sometimes employed as finishers at about the same wages. The busy season is from June to December. September, October and November are perhaps the most active months of the season. In the spring and winter business is dull, and the few men employed are at work upon inferior material, which cannot be worked profitably in the busy season.

Fashion in furs changes slightly from year to year, and the growing taste for summer furs now has to be taken into account. Boas, capes and muffs are now being made for next winter. The cheapest and most abundant skin is that of the hare; the costliest are those of the beaver, sable, seal, black fox and ermine. The last named is extremely rare. The dispised polecat contributes fur to the comfort and ornamentation of beauty, and nobody turns up their nose at him.

His unpleasant characteristics disappear in the curing. Pretty boas are made of the hare's skin, and costly capes of lynx, sable and beaver fur. Some of the costliest furs are imported, but the great mass of fur garments are made from native skins.

Foreigners have been pioneers in the fancy fur business of New York, and there are still many Frenchmen, Germans and Italians employed in the work; but native Americans are taking to the trade more and more. It requires from one to five years to become an expert cutter, but other branches of the trade are more quickly learned. The costliest furs are made up in large factories, because it takes considerable capital to keep a stock of raw material on hand. The business is rather dirty, but it is not specially unwholesome.—New York Star.

Knowledge Costs Money.

Agent—If nothing came out, that shows it's empty.

"But, sir, what do I get for my nickel?"

"Information."—New York Weekly.

Cannon Ball Capers.

Capt. Meredith, John Ritchie and George Shields, known as "old hosses" and "old timers," sat around in the Press club one afternoon recently and talked about the times of the war and told of the funny capers that cannon balls and musket balls cut. Capt. Meredith said he once found a dead Confederate behind a tree. The dead man was resting on one knee, in a position to shoot. His musket was in his hands, the butt of the gun was against his shoulder, and one eye was open, squinting along the gun barrel. There wasn't a mark on the body, but the man was stone dead. There was a ten pound cannon ball buried in the tree. The man had been killed by the concussion.

Mr. Shields said that he saw a cannon ball go into the ground about 200 yards in front of where he was standing. He thought that was the end of the matter, but in about three seconds the ball came out of the ground fifty yards beyond the place it struck. It then in its flight struck a stump, carromed off, broke a soldier's leg, and, rolling on a few yards further, upset a camp kettle and scalded a man's hands.

John Ritchie said he saw a man hit with a "spent" cannon ball. He walked over to where the man lay to see what he could do for him—give him a drink out of his canteen, or a chew of tobacco, or something—but all that was visible was a mass of about 100 pounds of flesh and blue cloth, mixed up like sausage, with an eye and two teeth sticking out on top.

Capt. Meredith said that, speaking of cannon balls, one of the most novel sights he witnessed during the war was a cannon ball about as big as a flour barrel going through a horse lengthwise—that is, lengthwise of the horse. There was left of the horse its head, its four feet and the lower six inches of its tail.

When it reached this stage I saw that there was a disposition to break down the ropes and let everybody take a hand in the lying, so I got away before I was crippled.—Chicago Mail.

Trapping Mosquitoes.

Three or four men were sitting on the piazza of a seaside cottage smoking. It was evening. The stars were as thick in the sky as freckles on a red headed girl's face. The waves came in on the beach with a swish-swash-swosh just as they have done ever since the second day of the creation.

More piercing than the song of the waves were the notes, and more multitudinous than the stars of heaven the number of the mosquitoes that haunted that piazza, and every one of them was "looking for blood." The men had ceased smoking for fun. They now puffed their pipes and cigars to keep the mosquitoes away.

"Something funny about mosquitoes," said one rather absent mindedly.

"Yes, rather," was the drawling reply.

"No, but honest, now; do you know that if a mosquito 'd get his bill down into your hand he can't pull it out while you hold your breath?"

"Don't believe it."

"It is true, however, for I have tried it."

"Bet you the cigars a mosquito can take his bill out at any time he wants to do it, and we will try it right here. Is it a go?"

"It is, and I'll let them try." A lamp was lighted, the cigars put out and all waited. In less than a minute a mosquito had placed himself on Tom's hand and begun operations.

"Now," said Tom, and placed the forefinger of his other hand down close to the mosquito. It did not budge. He placed his nail against the abdomen of the insect and whirled it around. Still it remained fixed.

"You can do it every time," said Tom, as he killed the mosquito and drew a long breath.

Belling the Rat.

Dr. McCresswell is troubled with rats—that is to say, rats infest his drug store. Every now and then he will find a large rat in the trap. The other day an unusually large one was caught. It was not killed, for the doctor is too tender hearted to kill anything. Mr. Rat was chloroformed, and while asleep a tiny silver bell attached to a piece of silk was placed round the rat's neck. After painting the day and date of capture on the rat's back restoratives were used, and the rodent was soon in a condition to walk about the cage trap. The merry tinkle of the bell produced a queer sensation on the rat. It's a fact, the countenance of the rat assumed a livid hue and it became so nervous that its teeth chattered. Then the rat was freed, and darting in its hole disappeared. What effect the tinkling of the bell had on the other rats can better be imagined than described, but all the rats have left the drug store.—Washington Capital.

A Cat Commits Suicide.

A tabby cat belonging to the family of David B. Paul, Wallingford, is reported to have committed suicide while grieving over the loss of her family of five kittens that had been drowned in order to keep down the cat population. When the old cat missed her offspring she went tearing over the house, showing her great distress by loud mewing. Failing to find the kittens after a long search, she went up to the third story and deliberately jumped out on the porch roof below. When picked up old tabby was dead, her neck being broken in the fall. —Philadelphia Press.

LONG LIFE

There is nothing in the world more generally desired than long life, yet the majority of people put off caring for their health—not because they are really careless, but because we live our lives at such a pace we have not time to give the subject sufficient thought until we receive a reminder in the shape of a severe illness.

Then, too, we are constantly bewildered by the various schools of medicine, and the physicians who represent them, and often blunder in our choice of a doctor.

If people only knew that the very best health-keeper, life-preserver, and disease-preventer that has yet been discovered, is simmered down into a concentrated and very palatable form in the shape of New Style Pleasant Taste Vinegar Bitters, they would not hesitate a moment to try it.

But they do not know. How can they know, when so many not only worthless, but positively injurious drugs are constantly flooding the market under various names guises, that the New Style Vinegar Bitters is as bad as any of them?

They do not know, of course, unless they have the courage to try the New Style. It straightens out a tangled-up system in a very short while, and those who buy it once buy it always.

Why don't you try it, reader? It is sent out by a responsible house, and is exactly as represented. It costs but a dollar for a very large bottle. Try it once and you will never be so glad of anything in your life. Your druggist may not have it, but he will order it for you. Be sure it says New Style Pleasant Taste on carton and bottle before you take it. Try it, and you will feel happier than if you had found a gold mine, for it really is a mine—of health.

—A young chicken thief was captured on Sunday morning while in the act of stealing a number of chickens from an east Center street resident. The same youthful culprit has been in trouble a couple of times before on the same charge. Mr. P. M. Slocum, assistant engineer on the water works, died unexpectedly Saturday night of perforation of the bowels, after an illness of several weeks. The last two weeks he has been tenderly cared for at the home of Mr. Stafford, in the east end of town. Howland & Ellis lose, in Mr. Slocum, an able and faithful employee. His remains will be buried at Springfield, Mass.

The street concert given by the Prospect band Saturday night attracted a large crowd. Marion can appreciate good music, but has not been favored much in the way of street music this summer. The Prospect boys play well, and their visit was quite refreshing and inspiring. We trust their liberality will be remembered when occasion requires the services of a good band.

Union Signal. An English journal puts the liquor problem in this form: Twenty five snakes running through the streets that's free whisky, twenty five snakes gathered in a box in twenty five holes are made by authority of the court—that is low license, ten of the holes are closed and the snakes all get out through the other fifteen that is high license, drive all the snakes over to the next village—that is local option, kill all the snakes—that is prohibition.

—The Huntington Herald, in its C. and A. railway notes says: Several large tanks of 5000 gallons capacity are under construction in the boiler shop. A new crew was placed on the east end this week. Conductor Payton has charge of it. Several dozen bulletin boards have been made at the car shop to put in all stations along the road. Conductor Day's crew had the misfortune to smash up a box car pretty badly at Spencerville, yesterday. It was done while switching at that place.

Secretary Bonham, of the Ohio state board of agriculture, says: "The crops this year are of good average, and the wheat is turning out well, but on some of the land it weighs light. Potatoes will be about twenty cents a bushel in a short time and the supply will be very large. This is accounted for in a great measure from the fact that the improved machinery for raising potatoes makes it possible for a man with the same force with which he could formerly cultivate one acre of potatoes to be able now to cultivate and handle twenty to twenty five. A potato crop at twenty five cents a bushel is as good as a crop of corn at the ruling prices.

Peter B. Stauffer, editor of the Londonville Advocate, is authority for the following story: On the 15th of July an English sparrow flew into his office and was captured. The bird was released after a tag, bearing the words, "Londonville Advocate" and the date "July 15," was securely fastened to one of its legs. Nothing more was thought of the matter, hence Editor Stauffer says he is greatly surprised to receive a letter containing the leg of the sparrow with the tag attached. The letter was sent by Fred M. Clary, cashier of a bank at Huron, South Dakota. He states that his son killed the sparrow at Huron on July 27, eleven days after the bird's release at Londonville.

—Galion Sun Review. The telegraph Monday brought the intelligence of the death that morning of George Coe, son of the popular Erie ex-conductor, Ed. Coe. The young man was employed as a brakeman in the Erie yards at Dayton, and while engaged in the line of his duties stepped from a flat car on to a coupling link attached by one end to a draw bar, and the link slipping, caused him to fall to the ground between the cars. He realized his awful position and attempted to save himself by rolling from under the cars, but was caught on the rail, the cruel wheels passing over his body, disemboweling him and cutting off one leg. Notwithstanding his frightful injuries he lived for three hours after the accident.

Mary Linn Sues the Star for Damages to That Amount.

Mary Linn, with her imagined grievance against the editor of the STAR, is evidently determined to have justice, for today she brought suit for damages against W. G. Harding for $10,000 damages. McNeal and Wolford are plaintiff's attorneys.

Such an enormous sum is difficult for a newspaper man to contemplate. Delinquent subscribers are urged to bear in mind this fact.

The case will come up for trial at the October term of court.

A Barn Burned.

The large barn, 40 by 84, on the John Ulsh farm six miles south east of Marion, and owned by Mrs Isaac Young, burned to the ground Saturday night, and consumed all its valuable contents.

The place is rented by Frank Ulsh, who is a heavy loser by the fire. About ten o'clock the folks at the house were attracted by the pawing and whannying of the horses in the barn and upon going out discovered the fire. It had gained much headway before the discovery however, and when the doors were opened the whole inside was found to be furiously burning. Not even the horses could be saved.

Among the destroyed contents were three valuable horses, a new clover huller, new binder, two good buggies, all of Mr. Ulsh's farm implements, 800 bushels of oats, 100 bushels of wheat, 50 tons of hay, a large amount of straw, harness, etc.

On all these contents Mr. Ulsh had not a single dollar of insurance, and his loss falls very heavily. Mrs Young had a policy of $900 on the barn.

There is nothing known as to the origin of the fire.

Democratic Delegates.

The Democrats of Marion county met in mass convention at the City Hall on Saturday to select delegates and alternates to the state convention at Dayton. The delegates chosen are I. F. Guthery, B. McVay, H. T. VanFleet, B. G. Young, W. F. Scofield, George Cook and A. C. Edmundson. The alternates are George Christian, Harry Weaver, C. R. McCullough, M. E. Sweney, Jacob Schaaf, George DeLaunder and Wm. McNally.

H. T. VanFleet introduced a resolution instructing the delegates to use all united means to secure the nomination of Judge Norris for the supreme bench, and, though that was the first intimation of the judge's candidacy, the resolution was unanimously passed.

The delegates are said to stand five to two in favor of Neal. The minority in the delegation is for Campbell.

Runaway Accident at Caledonia.

Mrs. W. H. Warwick, residing about one mile north of Claridon, was quite seriously injured in a runaway accident at Caledonia last Saturday evening. While driving a horse attached to a buggy through that place the animal became frightened at the cars and ran, overturning the buggy and throwing Mrs. Warwick to the ground. Her right leg was broken by the fall and she was otherwise badly bruised.

Surgical aid was at once called and her injuries were attended to. The horse was captured after completely demolishing the buggy.

Dress Reform will be the subject of both lectures. On Friday evening Mrs. Miller will lecture to ladies only, on Saturday night to ladies and gentlemen.

The Ladies Delighted.

The pleasant effects and the perfect safety with which ladies may use the liquid fruit laxative, Syrup of Figs, under all conditions make it their favorite remedy. It is pleasing to the eye and to the taste, gentle, yet effectual in acting on the kidneys, liver and bowels.

—The family of John Nebergall, of this city, received a telegram this morning announcing the death of William Nebergall at Columbus. They will leave this evening for that city to attend the funeral, which takes place Tuesday.

Cause and Effect.

I found Floating. Mary had a little lamb, its fleece was white as snow, it strayed away one summer day, where her lamb should never go. Then Mary sat down and tears streamed from her pretty eyes she never found her lamb because she didn't advertise. And Mary had a brother John, who kept a country store, he sat down and smoked his pipe and watched his open door. And as the people passed along, but did not stop to buy, John still sat and smoked his pipe and blinked his eye. And so the Sheriff closed him out, but still he lingered near, and Mary came to drop within a sympathizing tear. "How is it, sister, that these other merchants here sell all the goods, pay all their bills and thrive from year to year?" Remembering her own hard luck, the little maid replies, "Please other fellows get there, John, because they advertise."

—A pioneers' log cabin has been erected on the Hardin county fair grounds, and on September 11th it will be dedicated. Gen. W. H. Gibson will be among the notable persons present. The inside of the cabin during the days of the fair will be filled with relics used by pioneers.

DOXSEE'S PURE CLAM JUICE!

"I throw physic to the dogs."
—Shakespeare or Bacon?

INVIGORATING and appetizing if taken cold before eating in the morning. It tones up the system, settles a disordered stomach. A gentle, but sure cathartic. If a matutinal cocktail must be indulged in, it will counteract its bad effects as to stomach and brain. An absolute and sure preventitive of sea sickness. Its components are closely allied to the gastric juices of the stomach.

An Antidote to Intoxicants.

IF taken regularly fresh and cold, three times a day, before each meal, it will put the stomach in such a shape that the necessity for stimulants will not be felt, and excessive desire can be toned down to simple moderation. I shall keep Clam Juice constantly on hand to be served HOT, hot or cold, to my customers. Knowing positively from experience that it will do all that is claimed for it above, I will try in every way to promote its use, as it is not my wish to encourage excessive drinking, and if I can discourage it by giving away freely the only known antidote I will only be too glad to do so.

Have also for sale Buckingham whisky, old Maryland rye—fully matured, seven years old, the best in the country.
